Integrating Youth Workforce Development and After School Programs

April 28, 2011

Mary G. Keipp and Pamela B. Schachter

What are the benefits?

- Students want jobs
- Work experience helps students think about life beyond high school
- Work helps students see the relevance of education
- Work provide opportunities for students to be successful in non-academic settings
- A work experience program connects an after school program to the regular school day by developing relationships with small learning communities, career pathway programs and career academies
- A work experience program connects an after school program to community resources
